City Council Kills Fatally Wounded Greenbelt Dist.

At a special meeting last night, the Carmel City Council killed the Carmel Consolidated Recreation, Park and Parkway District. Francis Whitaker, its official Godfather, made the motion:

"The Board of Supervisors has excluded so many areas which would have benefited by the district it is no longer realistic or fair."

City Clerk Lawrence Rose and City Attorney Thomas Perry were instructed to convey this information in a letter to the county board, incorporating additional thoughts supplied by John Chitwood and Mayor Horace Lyon.

Chitwood: "The time will come when the whole area will recognize such a district is necessary."

Lyon: "Though the concept is sound, the time is not propitious."

The proposed and now defunct Recreation, Park and Parkways District had passed through two hearings in Salinas before the county board of supervisors and was scheduled for a third on Monday. At the first two hearings there was such a unanimous protest from the Highlands and Lower Carmel Valley property owners that the supervisors decided to count them out, shrinking the proposed boundaries (the same as those of the Carmel Unified School District) to Carmel River on the South and Hatton Canyon on the East. The hearing set for Monday was to discover how the property owners on the North, in Pebble Beach and Del Monte Forest, felt about it. Del Monte Properties had already expressed its desire to be excluded. Members of Del Monte Forest Home Owners Association were signing a petition, saying they, too, wanted to be left out, when the proponents of the district called an emergency meeting at 7:00 o'clock last night, prior to the council meeting.

There was no difference of opinion among the representatives of the Carmel City Council, Carmel Planning Commission, Carmel Recreation District Board, Carmel Unified School District at the emergency meeting, on killing the mutilated district. They decided

Schultz Appeal Backed 100% By C-2 Prop Owners

Last night the Carmel City Council continued until Tuesday evening at 8:00 o'clock the hearing on the Charles Schultz appeal from the planning commission's decision to deny them a building permit in Zone C-2.

The continued hearing will be preceded by a joint meeting of planning commission and council at 7:00 o'clock, when the council hopes to clarify a difference in opinion on the interpretation of the interim ordinance which gave the planning commission power to deny the building permit under consideration.

The planning commission using their interim zoning ordinance powers, denied Schultz a permit for a building with shops on the first floor, apartments on the second, on the grounds that it would be "incompatible" with the light industry and service classification of the zone, though such use is permitted under the existing zoning ordinance.

"We should consider the reason for the interim ordinance," said Patnude after the council had listened to Attorney Louis Moore present the Schultz case, and heard other property owners in the area speak in support of the Schultz appeal.

"We were afraid that prior to the adoption of a master plan we would get uses that down graded the area. We didn't get into the

Noel Sullivan

Noel Sullivan died on Saturday night in Stanford University Hospital in San Francisco where he had been a patient since Wednesday night when he suffered a heart attack at the Bohemian Club. He was 66 years old.

Mr. Sullivan was a member of a pioneer California family. John Sullivan, his grandfather, brought his family to Calaveras County in 1844 and in 1846 moved with them to Yerba Buena, later to become the city of San Francisco. John Sullivan was founder and first president of the Hibernia Bank.

Francis Sullivan, Noel Sullivan's father, was the first child to be christened in St. Francis Church in San Francisco.

The late James D. Phelan, state senator and mayor of San Francisco, was Noel Sullivan's uncle. Senator Phelan established in his will the annual James D. Phelan Awards to develop talent in California in literature and art. Noel Sullivan was a trustee of the Phelan Awards.

Mr. Sullivan spent much of his youth abroad, studying music in Paris and developing a keen appreciation of art. He was possessor of a sensitive and well-trained bass voice.

He returned to San Francisco upon the death of his father. In 1930 he became a director of the San Francisco Art Association filling the vacancy created by the death of Senator Phelan.

He spent many week ends in Carmel and in 1934 decided to make his home here. In 1937 he moved to Hollow Hills Farm in Carmel Valley which was to become famous for the gracious hospitality of its host.

Noel Sullivan served on the boards of directors of the Carmel Music Society and the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra. He sang in the early Bach Festivals and each year gave a luncheon at Hollow Hills for all persons taking part in the Festival. He also graciously opened his home to fund-raising events for worthy causes.

A lover of animals, he served as president and board member of

In Appreciation Of Noel Sullivan

By Claude M. Kinnoull

Much has been written, still more could be said about Noel Sullivan as a man of culture, lover of beauty, patron of the arts, musician, benefactor of good causes, accomplished host.

He was all these things. And he was also a devoted son of the church, with the truly Franciscan qualities of simplicity and compassion, and a lovely gift for laughter.

Often referred to as a "philanthropist", he was, perhaps more simply and exactly, a Catholic who lived his faith and made it the basis of his sense of values; who saw that the "brotherhood of man" is an empty phrase without the Fatherhood of God and that one cannot truly love either God or neighbor without loving both. Hence, he was no arm-chair humanitarian content to sign checks deductible from income tax. To Noel giving meant also the gift of himself.

As I look back on 14 years of a friendship which nothing can replace, I see him with his hands held out to give or to welcome, to accept another's load or to make a frightened animal feel safe.

His was the cause of the helpless, the ill-treated, the despised. People and also our humble fellow creatures, the beasts — were individuals, each with his own response to life, his unique capacity to be happy or hurt, and none was too lowly to deserve understanding and concern. Unimportant to Noel were his own comfort, health, peace of mind. What counted was the help to be extended, the joy he could bestow, the solace for misfortune, the alleviated pain.

And so the tide of human griefs and complications and of animal distress battered and eroded a heart laid open to its reach. That heart "died inch by inch" and when, by dying, it had ceased to die, a great tenderness had gone out of the world.

By Rachel Morton
Long Beach, California

The telegram reads "God called Noel Sullivan to Himself"—And that is where Noel has longed to be for a long time. And that is where he surely is! How do I know? By the tokens of a 20-year-long friendship.

Through my tears, I see the sacrifices, the self-denials, the never-ending efforts for others that were his life. Were I to recount only the ones I knew, the story would never end. But his energy, his vitality, his every substance was hourly drained in his passion to serve. Such a zeal of heart cost him his life, and far too soon.

The Carmel Nuns knew, from his daily baskets, of his compassionate heart; the Mission for years echoed to the strains of beautiful music of his giving; the art and music lovers of Carmel are debtors to his generous giving and wise counsellings. Indeed the artists of the entire world have partaken of his hospitality and friendship. And those friends who were privileged to sit at his table will never cease to be grateful for the feast of good things had at his loving hand.

For me, personally, there was "an abiding affection" (as he wrote on his photograph for me) which staunchly befriended me through good days and bad. Can friendship do more?

The heart of the man was so great, and his spirit so close to his Maker, that I sometimes thought of him as only sojourning here on earth, and that, under protest.

God give you peace, dear Noel, and catch you up again unto Himself.

By Milton Mayer

Noel Sullivan heard the Gospel, he said it, and he sang it, and there are many such. But he did it, and there are few such. "Christians," said Comenius in 1632, "are hard to find." They still are. If

"Look Up Elsie Adams" Was Password For Business And Professional Women

By Marjory Lloyd

Mrs. Paul H. Adams is looking forward to the Regional Conference of Business and Professional Women's Clubs at Asilomar this week end. She will attend officially as national secruity chairman of the newly organized Carmel Business and Professional Women's Club but in her background is attendance at many similar meetings when Elsie Adams was first State President of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Alaska.

"Why did you and your husband leave Alaska and retire to Carmel?" we asked Elsie Adams.

Her blue eyes twinkled as she replied, "It rained, especially in Ketchikan where we lived. For example last year Ketchikan had a rainfall of 202 inches. You wear out an umbrella every year in Ketchikan."

"But nobody minds the rain", she continued. "Although children run about wet all the time, they stay healthy and are free from colds. Once when there were five consecutive days of bright sun-

PADRES OPEN FOOTBALL SEASON SAT. AFTERNOON

Stern football tests face both the Carmel High varsity and junior-varsity grid squads Saturday afternoon when they square off against the Monterey lightweights and the B league champions of the San Joaquin Valley, Gustine. Coach Buzz Rainer's junior-varsity aggregation will get a taste of outside competition for the first time this season when Doug McNeill brings his fast-hard-hitting Monterey lightweights to Bardarson Field for a 12:30 game. The Gustine-Carmel varsity tilt is slated for 2 o'clock and will match the defending champions from the CCAL and San Joaquin B leagues.

Although the Carmel junior-varsity will outweigh Monterey by 20 pounds per man, the McNeill-coached Babes have terrific swift and always show exceptional blocking to make their tricky single-wing attack move. The 1956 edition of Carmel's junior-varsity is bigger, more experienced, and more mobile than last year's winning crew and figures to be a strong contender for the B league crown. Coach Rainer will send out a starting unit of Bill Hicks and Robin Way, ends; Hal Gregerson and Doug Carlson, tackles; John Morse and Mike Raggett, guards; Alan Eaker, center; Bert Macahilig and Rod Phillips, halfbacks; Armin Jones, fullback; and Roger Fremier, quarterback.

Gustine comes to Carmel with a distinct revenge motive for the 45-6 defeat hung on them by last year's high-scoring Padre varsity. Everything worked to perfection for the Pades at Gustine last season and the Carmel lads enjoyed a 40-point lead early in the third quarter. The visiting Indians have practically their entire varsity returning this season and will be eager to turn the tables on the Padres. Equipped with one of the finest quarterbacks in the San Joaquin Valley, Dwight Davenport, Gustine operates with a tricky split-T attack which is dressed up with occasional spreads and flankers. Davenport passed Gustine to the San Joaquin League championship last season and he is rated number one in that area this year.

Short on speed and weight, the Carmel varsity also must rely on the forward pass to generate an offense. In Charley Dawson, the Padres have an experienced quarterback who can throw the football accurately and one who can pick up a few yards on the keep plays. Clyde Klaumann, a two-year varsity letterman, operates from the fullback spot and is a threat to both the inside and outside. A trio of pass-catching ends, Pat Harney, Don Smith, and Bob Durbrow, showed up well in the CCAL Jamboree and could offer a threat to the Indian pass defense. Carmel will open with an offensive team of Bob Durbrow and Pat Harney, ends; Paul Prince and Phil Durbrow, tackles; Parker Pollock, center; Neil Giarratana and Bob Leidig, guards; Jack Faia and Tim O'Shea, halfbacks; Clyde Klaumann, fullback; and Charley Dawson, quarterback. The Padres will go on defense with Art Wilkerson and Don Smith, ends; Bob Leidig and Brian Leidig, tackles; Mike Meheen and Joe Mason, guards; John Stiles and Charley Dawson, linebackers; Jack Faia and Clyde Klaumann, halfbacks; and Cim Conway, safety.

Saturday's preliminary game between the junior-varsity and Monterey lightweights gets underway at 12:30 with the varsity tussle slated for 2 o'clock.

CCAL FOOTBALL JAMBOREE EAST CLIPS WEST, 25-13

Given a good start by the little school from the hills of San Lorenzo, the East schools followed the pattern set by Coach Richards' Cougars and powered to a convincing 25-13 win over the hard-trying West contingent. San Lorenzo, not a league member but a courtesy competitor, jolted the big Live Oak squad, 6 to 0, in the first fifteen-minute "game" of the Jamboree.

The Carmel Padres took on Pacific Grove in the second "game" and came out of the fracas with the dubious distinction of being the only East team to be scored against. San Lorenzo had left the ball with a 4th and 30 to go situation and the Padres were forced to punt on their first offensive play. A wayward center pass forced kicker Charley Dawson to run for it and he collected only one-third of the necessary 30 yards. Pacific Grove took over on their 45-yard line and in one bite ate up the 55 yards for a touchdown. Steve Bailey, colored speedster, zipped off the Padre right tackle and had the green light all the way to the goal line. Carmel came back with a drive of their own following the kickoff and were driving for an apparent score on the PG 25-yard line when a Dawson to Ostrander lateral pass went awry and Pacific Grove's alert end, Mike Smith, scooped it up and rambled 75 yards for the second PG shocker. Except for the two bolts of lightning, the Carmel defense contained the Breakers pretty well and the Padre offense moved consistently through the air and on the ground.

In the other Jamboree "games", Gonzales outscored King City, 6 to 0, as the little Spartans showed too much speed for the heavier Mustangs. Gilroy and Hollister played to a scoreless deadlock as both teams put up stubborn defenses and traded fumbles. Watsonville, CCAL A League defending champions, showed crushing power in tripping Monterey, 6 to 0. A surprisingly good Santa Cruz eleven stunned the Salinas Cowboys, 7 to 0, as the Cowboy defenders were bewildered by the deft ball-handling of the Santa Cruz quarterback.

THE SPORT WHEEL

Ex-Padres Play At Stockton Friday Night—The four 1956 Carmel High graduates who traveled to Southern California for higher education return to Northern California for some football action this Friday night when the Santa Ana Dons visit Stockton for a joust with the potent Stockton Junior College eleven. Ex-Padres Dick Ogden and Bill McCormack are candidates for end positions on the Don squad and Bob Michela is making a run for one of the guard spots. Mike Mosolf, Carmel High's quarterback last season, is engaged in a torrid race with three Southern California speedsters for the qb spot.

Bill Abbey's MPC Lobos Host Citrus JC Friday Night — A revenge-minded Citrus Junior College from Azusa invades the Monterey Peninsula College stadium Friday night to give the Lobos their first test of the 1956 football season. The Lobos handed the Citrus eleven a thorough shellacking last season and the visitors will be going all out to even the score. This will be the first outside competition for the current season for the Lobos who showed plenty of spark and fire in their recent intrasquad game. Coach Abbey's squad will be considerably lighter than last year's potent aggregation but it is well-manned with classy performers.

Evaluating The CCAL Football Teams—After a close look at the teams in the CCAL Jamboree it appears that Hollister is a shoo-in for the B division title unless Gilroy can muster enough defensive strength to hold them even. Pacific Grove, blessed with terrific speed, could be the real dark horse of the league. The Breakers need more line power to hold the bruising Hollister runners. Gonzales has an extremely light squad which has the speed to surprise some of the big ones. King City, Carmel and Live Oak seem to lack the necessary speed to threaten the swift ones. In the A division, the big surprise could be Santa Cruz under the astute coaching of Larry Seimering. The Cardinals are operating the Seimering ride series like old pros and a more solid defense will make them a threat. All the A division teams are adequately manned this season and Watsonville's crown is riding shakily on the Wildcat's head.

the churches were filled with Christians on Sunday morning, the inequities of the social order would not endure to Monday noon. Noel was a weekday Christian, and his Christian radical action was the only answer there is to the aberrations of communism and capitalism — the answer of the faithful steward.

The lot of the faithful steward is as hard as that of the faithless; this one killed himself giving as surely as the rest of us kill ourselves getting. Like the rest of us, he stumbled and fell under his Cross; but his Cross, unlike ours, was the right one, and, unlike us, he carried it gladly and died very gladly. "He that believeth on me, the things that I do, he shall do likewise, and greater things than these, for I go to join my Father."

By Robinson Jeffers

We think first of Noel Sullivan's goodness, his kindness and compassion and generosity, his wide and deep sympathies. He was like a saint, and like a saint he was capable of sudden rages against injustice, but if the persecutors had been laid at his mercy he would have forgiven them.

Then we think of Noel's understanding, his rapid and fascinating intelligence; he never had time to read, but by instinct or through conversation he knew all that was going on. We think of his deep interest in the arts, but especially in music; we think of his far-flung friendships, here and in Europe, his devotion to his friends, and his hospitality. And there was a kind of magnificence in his life and mind — the word is too pompous but it says what I mean — that cannot be forgotten. When I heard of his death it was as if a tower had fallen. He has left us and we shall never know another like him.

By Remsen Bird

The Community of Carmel mourns the death of its greatly beloved citizen, Noel Sullivan.

Unsparing of himself to the very end, his life has been lived among us enriching, by his wisdom, courtesy and generous care, every worthy aspect and endeavor of this fair place.

His loving kindness included all living. The animals of the forest, of the field and of the home always received his consideration and tender care.

He was especially understanding and thoughtful of those for whom our circumstances were neglectful, or unkind.

Although his years and association had given him wide and sure cultural experience, he was not content to enjoy apart, but sought to share with his neighbors and friends the privileges which were available to him.

A man of profound faith, true piety and deep convictions, he was at the same time open-minded, tolerant, interested and urbane in the reception and consideration of the opinions and convictions of others. He also, had a delightful sense of humor.

True Christian humility is a very beautiful virtue, a difficult one to acquire by conscious effort, but an especially shining one when it is a trait of character of those who, as with him, are unaware that they possess it.

The friends of Noel Sullivan, whose hearts are heavy in the passing from them of his good companionship, are legion and are in many lands, many nations and among many races. The friendship of Noel Sullivan was for all who were so happily bound to him, a very special and life inspiring and never departing possession.

A man, whose stature is one of greatness, has walked among us. His presence in countless ways has given true meaning to this community.

Telegram From Langston Hughes
New York

We who had the good fortune to share his friendship knew that he lived so beautifully he had no fear of going and he leaves in our hearts memories that will glow always although we cannot help but miss him greatly. I wish I were there to sorrow with those close to him in Carmel.

By Harriet Keen Roberts

True things, finely expressed, have been and will be written of Noel Sullivan. I can only add a hedgerow nosegay of small personal memories and some better words than mine—since they are all quotations.

When we see a competent actor we think, "How like he is to the character he is portraying." When we see a great actor we say, "He IS Hamlet or Alexei." Noel was very like Alyosha. But if we see a supreme dramatic genius we feel, "This IS love, or passion or despair." I wondered at first why I felt quite so desolate at the death of a friend whose endless kindnesses had left him infinitely weary and whose goodness made him very ready to take that last hard step into joy. Then I realized that to me (and, I am sure, to all his friends) Noel had been a supreme artist in life, he WAS, to us, gentleness, hospitality, sympathy, friendship itself. In the moment of loss I felt "Noel was Carmel" and, with his departure, all "darkling stands the varying shore o' the world."

It was a rare art and it could spring only from a flowering of love, planted in a firm ground of faith. Noel wore himself out giving help and sympathy, giving his friends all the outward and visible signs of affection, sharing his own art and that of others with them, giving gifts and parties, making short visits. But, rarer than this generosity was the feeling Noel gave his friends that had he "but world enough and time", each friend would be experiencing, at every moment, his love and kindness.

Noel was our first friend in Carmel. He must have feared that my husband and I might be lonely, he far from his native land, both of us far from our families and friends. So Noel asked us to eat our first Thanksgiving and our first Christmas dinner at his table. Somehow, after that, wherever we happened to be, we felt we spent every Christmas and Thanksgiving Day with him. There was an immortal quality in Noel's hospitality.

Yet, "when one of those rich magazines of life on which we drew for our supply—falls in a breath to memory and shadow, there falls along with him a whole wing of the palace of our life." It is selfishness to feel this, unavoidable though it be. For Noel was one of those "to whom the miseries of the world Are misery, and will not let them rest." He was constantly tortured, for all his gentle wit and humor, for all his delight in the arts, by the thought of the sufferings of others,—human suffering, the suffering of the helpless dumb animals he loved. "Well, now, he is out of the fight; the burden that he bore thrown down before the great deliverer." This life is like weaving at the back of the loom. All we see is the crossing, the often cruel crossing, of the threads. Last Saturday night Noel went to the other side of the tapestry, now he can see the wonder and the beauty of the whole design.

Like the Master he worshipped, loved and followed, Noel loved his friends to the end. I shall never forget his quiet figure, sitting by our fire, as my husband lay dying, leaving a hundred tasks of his own undone, waiting to see if he could be of use to us. As I knelt at Noel's funeral in the chapel of the Carmelite Convent in Santa Clara and heard the unearthly, almost angelic voices of his sister and her nuns singing the Dies Irae, I heard, too, in my grateful heart, Noel's voice singing the same words at my husband's funeral — "Tube mirum spargens sonum."

To those of us with at least some part of his faith it is only the weakness of our frail and selfish human hearts that keeps us from rejoicing at this time when Noel finds not only the family he so loved, not only, I pray, the animals who were "the objects of his tenderness" but also "the glorious company of the saints in light". "May perpetual light shine upon him."

"Look Up Elsie Adams" Is Password For This Week End

shine in Ketchikan they closed the schools so the children could enjoy the unusual weather.

"We like sunshine, too," said Mrs. Adams, "so when Mr. Adams and I retired, we came to California where we could have lots of sunshine. We tried living in San Mateo first, but it was too big, so six years ago we came to Carmel and four years ago we moved into this house which we built."

The Adams house is on Flanders Drive in Carmel Hills. Windows open to the east, south and west, letting in lots of sunshine and permitting sweeping views of Carmel Valley. There is also a large, open patio where the Adams can sun to their heart's content after the rainy years in Ketchikan, and before that, in Seattle.

"I don't know why people here complain about fog," laughs Mrs. Adams. "Paul and I don't mind it a bit. It's nothing!"

"Alaska is a land of opportunity for young people," stated Mrs. Adams. "All the girls that go up get married if they want to, there are so many men, especially with all the new military installations."

"So many of the articles written about Alaska don't present it properly," Elsie Adams continued. "Lots of the writers hit a bar when they arrive and stay put. They don't know the real life of the territory. I have made it my business to tell about the fine life in Alaska and the important part which the women of the territory play in this life. That's what I talked about, and still talk about, at Business and Professional Women's Club conferences."

"How did you happen to go to Alaska?" we asked Mrs. Adams, who was born in Crested Butte, in the Western mountain country of Colorado.

"I had a job as a bookkeeper in Montrose, Colorado," she replied. "There I met Paul Adams, owner of a retail and whosesale hardware business. We were married and went to Seattle to live when my husband was offered a job with a wholesale hardware concern, Marshall Wells Company.

"After 13 years in Seattle Paul went to Ketchikan as general manager of the Tongas Trading Company which carried hardware; had a complete gun shop; everything an Alaskan fisherman could possibly desire; all anyone in Ketchikan wanted in every way except for women's clothing; the only thing the company didn't carry."

Mrs. Adams followed her husband to Ketchikan as soon as school was out that year and with her went the two Adams children, Paul, Jr., and June. They grew up in Ketchikan, so Mrs. Adams knows that the Japanese-current-induced-rainfall which almost constantly drenches Ketchikan does not mean colds and ill health for the children who play in the rain as children in California do in the sunshine.

In 1935 a Business and Professinoal Women's Club was organized in Ketchikan, and, as a certain percentage of the members did not have to be working women, Mrs. Adams was able to join. Another club was formed in Juneau and other clubs in Anchorage and Fairbanks. In 1945 when Wilma Zimmerman, National Membership Chairman of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, arrived in Alaska she was able to organize a State Federation and Elsie Adams was elected first State President.

The next year Mrs. Adams attended her first National Biennial Business and Professional Women's Club meeting in Cleveland, Ohio, representing Alaska among the 3,000 delegates. In Mrs. Adams' honor a birthday cake was served at the National Officers' dinner at the Cleveland Biennial and two waiters bore into the room a flaming platter of baked Alaska dessert, to pay tribute to the Alaskan state president.

"It was thrilling," says Mrs. Adams.

But the Cleveland Biennial was only the first of many Business and Professional Women's Club meetings Mrs. Adams attended. She went to two other biennials, one in Fort Worth, Texas, in 1948, another in San Francisco in 1950. Regional conferences to which she travelled from Alaska included those in Salt Lake in 1945, Sun Valley in 1947 and Seattle in 1949.

By this time Paul, Jr., and June had grown up and Mrs. Adams was back at work as cost accountant for the Tongas Trading Company which only lacked women's clothing to make it the complete answer to Alaskan shopper's needs. Mrs. Adams travelled to Business and Professional Women's Clubs in Alaska as well as flying to meetings "outside." Everywhere she played up women's role in the development of Alaska and made friends. The friends "turn up everywhere" Mrs. Adams maintains, and, added to the friends, are the friends of friends she is constantly meeting.

"Look up Elsie Adams," is a password among Business and Professional Women's Club members she has met all over the United States and Alaska.

"In Alaska, before the present days of flying everywhere, everyone arrived in Ketchikan by boat," remarked Mrs. Adams. "When the steamers came in, the whole town went down to the wharf to meet the ship and greet newcomers." Many of the arrivals, members of Business Professional Women's Clubs, were able to single out Elsie Adams among those waiting on the dock and rushed to greet her when they landed.

"Then there were those who wrote letters to me asking about coming to live in Alaska. They had met me at Biennials or regional conferences, or heard about me from persons who were at the meetings. I always answered their letters telling them the truth. Then, if they came, they knew what to expect when they arrived.

"I'm retired now," says the former Alaskan state presiident, sitting in her sunny living room in Carmel, far away from rainy Ketchikan, but she is looking forward to this weekend's Business and Professional Women's Clubs' Regional Conference at Asilomar. Many of her old friends will be present and she will make new ones. She will also give a radio talk about Alaska, stressing that it is a land of opportunity for young people, and telling once again how important is the women's role in the territory.

White Cane Day To Provide Equipment For Blind Children

Friday and Saturday are White Cane days. Carmel Lions Club members are selling the canes to raise funds for their sight conservation program which helps blind and partially blind children, according to Robert J. Bell, Lions White Cane chairman.

Particular projects of the Lions' sight conservation program is to equip the schoolroom in Del Rey School designated by the Monterey School system to be used entirely by sight handicapped children. A teacher has been hired to teach these pupils, but special equipment is needed. This equipment will be provided with the Lions' White Cane profits.

The four local Lions clubs are combining in this effort with a $500 goal set for each, thus ensuring the necessary $2,000 for the room equipment.

Three children in Carmel are eligible to enroll in this class for sight-handicapped students and 13 others are living on the Peninsula.

As the blind and partially blind students receive enough instruction they will be integrated as much as possible with children in their own age groups in the school.

Conservation On The March

A Weekly Column by

Western Representative,

FEDERATION OF WESTERN OUTDOOR CLUBS

Over the Labor Day week end I attended the 25th annual convention of the Federation of Western Outdoor Clubs at Fan Lake near Spokane, Washington. The Federation now has 35 member clubs with an aggregate membership of over 25,000 individual members. Its main purpose is to study and take action on problems of mutual interest to all the member clubs. The most important of these is the protection of our remaining wilderness areas from various threats of exploitation.

The total registration at the convention was 176. A motor caravan starting from southern California brought many members to the meeting. Several conservation leaders and officials of the National Park Service and Forest Service came from Washington, D.C. The host club, the Hobnailers of Spokane, provided opportunities for recreation trips in periods between programs. Official delegates and representatives of conservation organizations were busy in conferences and committee meetings throughout the convention period.

One of the main reasons for holding the convention in the Spokane district was its proximity to Lake Chelan and the Glacier Peak area in north central Washington. Several parties from the Sierra Club and other conservation organizations had been camping there, with the idea of studying the various problems involved in setting permanent boundaries for the proposed Glacier Peak Wilderness Area. The U.S. Forest Service has also been studying the problem and there is a desire on the part of all people interested in the area to come to some agreement on the subject soon.

Everyone who visited the region was most enthusiastic over its grandeur. Many people stated that the quality of its scenery was superior to that of some of our finest national parks. Unfortunately logging contracts are being discussed that would destroy the beauty of the approach valleys. The hope was constantly expressed at the convention that these logging operations could at least be deferred until a complete study of the scenic value of the region could be made.

Another area close to Spokane that came in for much discussion at the convention was the Clearwater River valleys in Idaho. A representative of the Idaho Wildlife Federation was present to explain the problems. The Army Engineers have proposed two dams on the Clearwater, a tributary of the Snake, that would jeopardize the fish and game resources of the region, and one of which would trespass on the Selway-Bitterroot Wilderness Area. The conservation forces of the country are uniting in opposition to these projects. After the convention I spent three days visiting the dam sites and flying over the river valleys. They are well worth preserving and there are certainly alternative sites available.

These were two of the most important problems discussed at the convention. The Resolutions Committee was in almost continuous session and on the last morning the Federation passed a long list of recommended resolutions bearing on the outstanding conservation problems of the day. Since all 35 of the member clubs will be strongly backing the resolutions during the coming year, this annual Federation convention is considered to be one of the most important conservation gatherings of the year.

Do it yourself Water System

Here's a cheap way to fetch your water supply. Cheap, that is, in a money sense, but expensive in time and labor. And two other points: You couldn't supply all your family's needs with a water system of this kind, and the water you would take home might not be safe.

Modern water systems, such as the one which serves the Monterey Peninsula, brings to people, day in and day out, an abundant supply of good safe water cheaper than they can get it themselves.

The Time Has Come .

By Kippy Stuart

Oh dear, here I am in a jam again. Recently I wrote about the friend who asked me to identify a certain geranium, and how glib I was to accept the challenge. If you happened to have read The Time Has Come on that subject, you know how I fell flat on my face. Now comes another challenge and I expect to bite the dust again.

This friend asked me to identify a certain fuchsia. This time, I was wary and made no such promise, for I am aware that there are at least four thousand species of fuchsia. The trouble with popular plants, such as geraniums and fuchsias, is that each variety may have as many as a dozen different names. Here again, a single characteristic of the blossom that is hidden from the layman, will give to the expert a different slant; one extra petal . . . one extra stamen will determine the category into which a certain fuchsia will fall.

So, all I can do is to give personal experience contact with this particular plant. There is one red fuchsia, tiny in form, red-red, that is commonly called fire-cracker. I have been told by those in the know that this fire-cracker is the mother of all fuchsias. In fact, in the east, this is the only fuchsia I knew and have been known to pay as high as five dollars for one small potted plant. When California bursts upon the Easterner and he views the galaxy of fuchsias adorning our gardens, no wonder he is confused! He will ask a dozen different friends the name of a certain plant and be given as many as a dozen different names.

My experience with fuchsias has been wide and long and I am still confused. There are supposed to be two separate varieties, the basket and the standard. The latter grows straight up forming a large bush; the trailing fuchsia is used for baskets. What I have found is that one can do anything one desires with a fuchsia. If you happen to start with a so-called standard that is supposed to go straight up, and wish to form a trailing, all you do is tie a weight on each branch, and away the thing will go and turn from standard to basket. If you get what you think to be a basket variety, just brace the limbs and you have a standard.

The prevalent varieties of fuchsia in our locality repeat themselves all over the place. There are two lovely pure white flowers that are generally called Ave Maria and Joan of Arc; the most sturdy one that stands either shade or sun is called Schiller. Then there is treasure, a lush, lavender blossom . . . whitemost that is pink and white; the colossus of fuchsia is named The Chieftain, purple and pale pink.

One characteristic all fuchsias claim: the calix, or cup at the base of the flower, is always four-petaled. The confusion begins and ends with the form of the corolla, the inner, bright perianth, or floral envelope immediately surrounding the sporophylls. Here, all fuchsias go crazy. Fat or thin, the perianth determines the horticultural identification. The poor layman, unable to count these inner petals, just stumbles along and only the hybridizer, knows the answer. The stamen of the flower varies as frequently as other parts do. The stamen is the whiskers protruding from the center of the flower. Now you know as much as I do about fuchsias.

UNITED CHURCH WOMEN

Local Emphasis Day will be observed by United Church Women on September 28, at Carmel Valley Community Church, beginning at 1:00 o'clock. Other meetings of the Monterey Peninsula U. C. W. are devoted to national or world religious problems, the September meeting being the only one given entirely to local community needs. President of this branch is Mrs. C. A. Borchers of Carmel Valley. The morning program will present devotions by Chaplain John R. Wright, minister of the Carmel Valley Church.

For the afternoon a panel led by Dr. Margaret Swigart of Pacific Grove will discuss "Young People in Need." Contributing will be representatives of the County Welfare and Probation Departments and a member of the field service of the California Youth Authority, the parole officer for young girls for five counties of the Monterey area. Devotions will be given by Miss L. Lucile Turner.

All church women are invited to attend and bring a box lunch, with tea and coffee served by the hostess church women in the social room.

Boyer To Conduct Civic Chorus For Carmel Adult School

A choral singing class with Gilbert Boyer, director, is being organized under the Carmel Adult School program to meet every Tuesday evening in Room 14, Sunset School at 7:30 o'clock. The group is to be called the Monterey Peninsula Civic Chorus, a permanent organization to be active when the Bach Festival Chorus is not in training. Executive committee of the chorus is Wallace Doolittle, Mrs. Herbert Myers, Charles Oler, Mrs. Marion Parker, Jonathan Swan, Arlene Torri and Gilbert Boyer.

Brahms' German Requiem, considered by musicians as the most imposing choral composition since Beethoven, will be presented by the chorus after Christmas, with soloists and orchestra. Residents of Carmel, Pacific Grove, Monterey, Carmel Valley, etc., are welcome to participate.

Last December Gilbert Boyer conducted a performance of the Messiah with a local chorus, soloists and orchestra. Boyer is also conductor of the Carmel Chamber Music Society, a concert pianist, and assists with Bach Festival Chorus training.

BILL HERON GOLFS

Bill Heron has come from Sacramento to play in the California State Amateur Golf Tournament and be the guest of his father, Herbert Heron. The State Amateur brings Bill back to Carmel each year and gives him an opportunity to look up childhood friends on the Monterey Peninsula. This year his wife, Jean, and three children, Patty, Laurie and Stephen, are staying at home in Sacramento instead of coming to Carmel.

"Too much school for them to get away," says Bill.

Bright new idea from P. G. & E...

Redecorate your living room with light!

The trick is balanced lighting: Flood your living room with soft, diffused light — enough light to cheer up gloomy corners, brighten colors, bring out the rich textures of lovely fabrics. Balanced lighting helps you look your loveliest, too!

Three steps to balanced lighting:

1. Count your lamps—have you enough? It takes 5 lamps to light the average living room (250 square feet). A single lamp lights just 50 square feet.

2. Check bulb sizes. Table lamps should have one or more bulbs totalling 150 watts; floor lamps should have bulbs totalling 300 watts.

3. Now comes the fun. Move lamps around till soft, diffused light fills room evenly . . . without harsh glare or shadows. Then sit back and enjoy it!

FREE! 30-page booklet gives full home lighting story! Free booklet contains 22 tested lighting recipes for better, brighter living in all the rooms of your home. Write, phone or drop by your nearest P. G. and E. office for "See your home in a new light."

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

Not long ago, Anne Morrow Lindbergh published a small book called, Gift From the Sea, which has been very popular. This may be due in part to its simple wisdom which seems to meet the need of the thousands of readers it so quickly gained. Today we have another little book from the pen of this versatile writer, this time a book of poetry. For 20 years Mrs. Lindbergh has been writing poetry, her solemn thoughts translated into verse. Now she has published a collection of them under the title, The Unicorn.

The editors of Fortune have just published a rather astounding book entitled The Fabulous Future, America in 1980. It is composed of short pieces written by eminent men in many different professions, including a section by Robert Sherwood, the last thing he wrote before his recent very sudden death. Here we have the shape of things to come according to these very clear thinking people. America in 1980, a preview for you today!

New Ways in Discipline by Dorothy Baruch is a helpful book for parents of young children, and also for their teachers. And for readers with all degrees of musical experience, we have The Listener's Musical Companion, by B. H. Haggin. It is perhaps most valuable for its discussions of the works of various composers, a section on each, with two chapters on Bach.

John Seymour is a speaker on the British Broadcasting Company programs. He has been a resident of Africa for many years, and during that time has has been a farmer, a commercial fisherman, a miner, and a live stock inspector. Today he is a writer, and his book, One Man's Africa, is a result of broadcasts on Africa as well as his varied experience in that vast continent.

Today the term "brainwashing" is in common usage, but the techniques of brainwashing are little known. The Rape of the Mind by A. M. Meerloo, describes these techniques, and the psychology of thought control, and menticide. It is a timely explanation for most of us.

To some critics, Mary McCarthy is "quite possibly the cleverest writer the U.S. has ever produced". Her last novel was described as the height of cleverness, and to some of us who honestly doubt the statement, life can be a lonely thing so far as honest opinions are concerned. Now Mary McCarthy has a new book out which is entitled, Sights and Spectacles, 1937-1956. This is not a complete survey of theatre during these years but random articles on certain plays, people, and happenings in the theatre over the years.

Charles Baxter and Robert Louis Stevenson were lifelong friends and carried on a lively correspondence which ceased only at the death of Stevenson. This correspondence has been edited and composed into a book entitled R.L.S., Stevenson's Letters to Charles Baxter. Another new book for next week is a history of sailing by Jean de la Varende entitled, Cherish the Sea. It traces the history of sailing vessels and sailing from the times of the ancient Egyptians up to the clipper ships of our own immediate past. There is also a new biography of John Singer Sargent written by Charles Mount, and appearing this year at the centenary of Sargent's birth.

Last, there are four new novels, including Erle Stanley Gardner's latest mystery of the who-dun-it enthusiasts.

Barbara Frizzell Married

Barbara Anne Frizzell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil A. Frizzell of Salinas, formerly of Carmel, was married on Saturday afternoon to Michael Del Elliott, son of Dr. and Mrs. Del Elliott of Carmel.

The Reverend Charles A. Dowdell performed the ceremony in All Saints' Episcopal Church, decorated for the occcasion with arrangements of pink and white stock and lighted by tall tapers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a rosepoint lace gown, made with an off-the-shoulder neckline trimmed in pearls, long sleeves ending in points at the wrist, and a full skirt extending in back into a full cathedral train. The dress had previously been worn by the groom's sister, Mrs. Benjamin F. Pyle (Shirley Elliott) at her wedding four years ago. A tiny pearl embroidered lace cap held Barbara's fingertip veil in place and she carried butterfly orchids.

Mrs. Pyle came from her home in Columbia, Missouri, to be matron of honor at her brother's wedding and bridesmaids were Mrs. Colin Kuster and Mrs. Louis Robinson of Pasadena. Linda Frizzell was flower girl for her sister. The senior attendants were gowned alike in red ballerina length crystalette frocks with the matron of honor carring an arrangement of deep red roses and the others pale pink roses. They wore short-veiled red bandeaux in their hair.

The flower girl's dress was white nylon over pink and her nosegay bouquet of tiny pink roses was centered with one red rose. She had a bandeau of matching pink roses in her hair.

Dr. Del Elliott was best man for his son and ushers were Bradley Dixon of San Francisco; John Rudolph, Pacific Grove; Jim Boodel, San Mateo, and the bride's brother, Robert Frizzell.

Mrs. Frizzell chose a pink and mauve silk sheath dress for her daughter's wedding, worn with matching accessories and an orchid corsage.

Mrs. Elliott, mother of the groom, wore a beige sheath dress shot with silver threads and pinned garnet roses to her handbag.

The wedding reception was held at Del Monte Lodge. Pink and white stock were used to decorate the rooms and piano music was played to entertain the guests during the evening. After they cut their many tiered wedding cake, the young couple left for a honeymoon at an undisclosed destination. Barbara had changed to a turquoise shantung sheath dress with black accessories and a white orchid corsage.

They will live in Monterey where the groom is presently engaged in business. Both are graduates of Carmel High School. Barbara continued her education at San Jose State College and Michael at Menlo Junior College and Monterey Peninsula College.

Barbara's brothers are Robert, Virgil and Louis Frizzell. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil F. Frizzell of Altadena and the late Mr. and Mrs. Louis Boisot of Pasadena. Attending the wedding were her two aunts, Miss Bessie Byrne of Pasadena and Mrs. John T. Harding of Berkeley.

Schultz Next Organ Soloist

Members of the Monterey County Hammond Organ Society met on Sunday afternoon in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Skowran of Carmel Highlands.

The program opened with a piano and organ arrangement of Autumn Leaves played by Mrs. F. J. Westcott at the Hammond organ and Mrs. A. W. Leonard at the piano. This was followed by an original medley of a group of popular songs.

The second part of the program was arranged by Mrs. Margaret Aitkenhead and three of her young students, Carmelita, Angelita and Lolita Conception, and consisted of piano and organ duets. Mrs. Aitkenhead followed the children's demonstration with an organ accompaniment to a Hi-Fi recording. Dr. B. J. Balcar closed the program with four Hammond organ selections.

Next meeting of the group will be held in the Salinas Women's Club on the evening of October 11. Hal Schultz, top Hammond organist in the United States, and Columbia recording artist, will give a three hour program. The meeting is open to the public and tickets may be obtained by calling MA 4-4390.

Peter and Lucy in Denmark

A picture postcard of Frederiksborg Castle brings the information that Peter and Lucy Mawdsley have left off for the moment their revisiting of old scenes and renewing old friendships in England and are: "seeing a lot of Denmark in spite of the cold weather and some rain. Elsinore (Hamlet's Castle) yesterday. Our British Isles motor trip was successful and completed but in awful wet weather. Somewhat better here and hoping for an improvement when we get away from the seaboard and into Germany. Leaving for Hamburg next Tuesday. Regards to all." (And that means all of Carmel, from the couple who served the city so conscientiously for many years as city clerk and deputy city clerk.)

PLAN BOARD CONTINUES TO LOUSE THINGS UP

The Carmel Planning Commission in a two hour study session yesterday afternoon completed answers to questions on re-zoning, use permits, and non-conforming uses submitted to them by Planning Consultant Lawrence Livingston, Jr., to facilitate Livingston's framing of a new zoning ordinance for Carmel.

Questions on re-zoning brought the most radical change to the existing zoning ordinance. The planning commission decided that establishing a zone of interest would no longer be obligatory in each re-zoning proceeding. The Commission decides whether a zone of interest is necessary or not.

At present, before property can be re-zoned, assent of the person or persons owning fifty percent of the property in the established zone of interest must be obtained. Under the proposed new ordinance this fifty percent assent will not be obligatory but left to the discretion of the Planning commission to decide whether or not it should be obtained.

The Planning Commission is also authorized under the proposed ordinance to initiate a re-zoning without the consent of the property owner.

Egbert Schenck

W. Egbert Schenck, who spent many happy days in Carmel over a period of more than 15 years, died in a local hospital on Monday, and will be buried in the family plot in Palo Alto on Friday. Mrs. Schenck will live in Carmel in the home now being built at Tenth and Torres Streets.

Mr. Schenck was born in Memphis, Tennessee, on September 11, 1884. He was educated in Memphis and Kansas City, Missouri, and attended the University of Missouri until he went to China in 1906. While there, he received an offer to work for the F. W. Horne Co. in Japan. He accepted and lived in Japan until the fall of 1920, becoming the executive director of the company. He returned from Japan in 1911 to marry Sara Moffatt of Kansas City, who returned to the Orient with him.

In addition to a successfull career in business, he gave generously of his time and energy to public service. During World War I he served in several capacities in the American Embassy in Tokyo in connection with Red Cross activities during the American-Siberian campaign. He declined a commission as a major in the Army at that time because of his feeling that he would advance the military effort more effectively as a civilian. During World War II he was frequently consulted on conditions in Asia. He also served as acting vice-consul in Hongkong for a short period in 1920-21. At Twenty-nine Palms, California, he was active in connection with the Joshua Tree National Monument and his book describing the area is in press.

His contributiions in the field of archeology constitute significant advances to the knowledge of early man in western America. One monograph dealt with the shell mound at Emeryville on the shore of San Francisco Bay. He was joint author with other scientists of reports describing other sites. He also wrote on the subject of primitive man's writing on rock. For several years he was Honorary Curator of Archeology at the University of California in Berkeley.

All who knew Egbert Schenck appreciated his keen analytical mind and his broad knowledge and interests and his sense of humor. He loved the out-of-doors and keenly appreciated unspoiled mountains and deserts, an appreciation which he shared with his many friends.

In addition to his widow, he is survived by his brother, Hubert G. Schenck, Professor of Geology at Stanford University.

State Board Sets Oct. 1 For Hearing On Liquor License

City Clerk Lawrence Rose received notice from the state board of liquor control this week that a public hearing would be held October 2, 11:00 o'clock in city hall, on the objections of the city council to the transfer from Seaside of an off-sale liquor license to Carmel.

The applicants, Paul Chedester and Robert Aebersold, who operate the Pink Elephant liquor store in Seaside, wish to move their business to the new building on the rear of the Walt Pilot Market parking lot. The building, facing the parking area, is situated on Sixth Street between Junipero and Torres.

The council informed the state board that the proposed location is outside the area zoned for such business. Previously 215 Carmel people wrote letters to the city council protesting the location of a liquor store in that area. H. R. Ireland, who lives in the neighborhood sent a telegram by 125 citizens to the state board, offering their protest.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

How spiritual understanding of the real nature of man and the universe brings harmony in human experience will be brought out at Christian Science services this Sunday.

The Lesson-Sermon entitled "Reality" will include the following selection from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy (335: 27-29): "Reality is spiritual, harmonious, immutable, immortal, divine, eternal: Nothing unspiritual can be real, harmonious, or eternal."

Among the passages to be read from the King James Version of the Bible are the following (Psalms 33:1, 4, 5): "Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous: for praise is comely for the upright. . . . For the word of the Lord is right; and all his works are done in truth. He loveth righteousness and judgment: the earth is full of the goodness of the Lord."

Schultz Appeal Backed By Property Owners

question of people living in that zone. We talked purely about down grading. Since the ordinance was passed, the planning commission has devoted a lot of thought about how many people should live here. I'm wondering if this whole matter shouldn't be discussed with the planning commission. We passed the interim ordinance for one purpose and its being used for another."

Moore, in his presentation pointed out that practice in zoning is to permit upgrading and, with charts and diagrams, showed how assessed property values in the C-2 zone had risen.

"The time may arrive when the City of Carmel may not be able to afford a C-2 zone." If owners in the C-2 zone are to be restricted to C-2 uses (laundries, stables, woodworking shops, dairies, etc.) they will not be able to put their land to profitable use, property assessments must come down in that zone, which means a heavier burden of taxes on the residence and business zones.

Keith Evans, former Carmel mayor, one-time planning commission chairman and at present member of the Carmel Sanitary District Board, owner of the new Pilot Market building in the C-2 zone, said:

"It is difficult to fathom the reason why we should reserve the only undeveloped business area for industrial uses when the whole premise has always been that Carmel is not to be an industrial community. Carmel can be better served in its industrial needs from Monterey and Seaside. The plan is close to confiscation of property. If you sustain this ruling, you pile taxes on the property and at the same time destroy the property owners ability to pay the taxes. As the owner of some of the choicest "slum" (at this moment) property in Carmel I have let some buildings depreciate for 10 years, knowing I would build. In good faith I built a pretty good market building. I'd have been better off (if this ruling is sustained) to have put new tar paper on the roof of those buildings."

Jim Pruitt, speaking for Comstock Associates, property owners in the C-2 zone, reiterated Moore's contention that it has been the accepted zoning practice "in our town and in any town" to upgrade a zone and C-2 is a basic, zone.

J. O. Handley, school board chairman, former business association president, property owner in C-2: "I have lived in and around Carmel for 32 years. I am interested in what happens to Carmel. What I dislike about the planning commission's decision is "incompatability." If Schultz wants to build opposite a laundry and blacksmith shop, it is his gamble." He added that he had passed one of the two petitions signed by 100 percent of the property owners in the affected zone. "No one hesitated in signing. They felt that Carmel would make a tremendous mistake in sustaining this policy."

Bettie Greene, former owner of the stables that occupy the site of the proposed business and apartment building said:

"I was glad of the day I could sell the stable. I was starving to death. Taxes are so high, couldn't make it pay. Nobody could make it pay. Carmel can't support an industrial section."

Don Buttle representing Earl Graft, who owns the Carmel Dairy, said Graft had property in both C-1 and C-2 and was interested in upgrading his property. Recent sales in this area indicate Carmel is not attracting industries. Over the years, other than the glass company, there have been no purchases of property in the C-2 zone for C-2 uses.

In addition to the verbal support of the Schultz case, there were letters from Mary Walls, Bertha Bowen and Pauline Elias, and the two petitions.

Frank Putnam, chairman of the Carmel Planning Commission, was called upon at the opening of the hearing to state the planning commission's position, namely: the C-2 area is so small that it should be reserved for light industrial and service uses (stables, laundries, dairies, fender works, etc.) and that shops and living accommodations are incompatible with noise-making enterprises.

Mrs. Rosa Pagano Is New Owner Of The Do-Nut Den

Mrs. Rosa Pagano, wife of Captain Clifford Pagano, U. S. Army, is the new proprietor of the Do-Nut Den, Carmel restaurant on Mission Street, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues. Mrs. Pagano has purchased the business from Peter and Jean Beck, who have taken up new interests.

In addition to doughnuts, prepared at the Den, for both counter service and bakery purchase, Mrs. Pagano will feature Italian sandwiches, salads, and other specialties, developed from family recipes. A bit later, the Do-Nut Den will be remodeled to increase seating capacity, and a pizza oven will be installed for service of that famous Italian dish.

Captain Pagano is stationed at the Army Language School. He and Mrs. Pagano recently purchased a home in Mission Fields, where they live with their two daughters, Renee, 12 and Cuba, 7. Cuba is a student at Sunset School while her sister attends the Carmel Mission School. Upon completion of his Army service, Captain Pagano plans to "retire" to Carmel, and the family will make its permanent home here. "This is the place for us," say Clifford and Rosa Pagano. "We love people and hope everyone will drop into the Do-Nut Den and "chew the fat." No one has to buy anything just come in and get acquainted."

The Pagano family have just returned from a two-year tour in Alaska. Captain Pagano served in the European Theater during World War II, and later in Korea. His hobby is cooking, and it is from his collection of Italian recipes that the Do-Nut Den will gain a fresh continental touch with such specialties as Submarine Sandwiches, Italian Chef's salads, and later Italian Pizza.

Council Kills Mortally Wounded Greenbelt

the council should make it official at its meeting scheduled for 8:00 o'clock and then indulged themselves in post mortem.

Councilman Francis Whitaker: "I felt an antagonism between the supervisors and the incorporated area (Carmel) and I think that is one of the reasons these areas (Highlands, Lower Carmel Valley, and surely next Monday, Pebble Beach and Del Monte Forest) were excluded.

Councilman Carl Patnude: "I felt the district was being formed too fast. We couldn't educate the public."

Whitaker: "I thought we'd do that after it was on the ballot."

Somebody, miffed, said they didn't see how anybody could put over a district when the agencies that were to benefit wouldn't support it, referring to the Youth Center Adult Board's statement Monday: "It is the consensus of opinion of the board of directors that the Carmel Youth Center is not taking any position with regard to the foundation of the Carmel Consolidated Recreation, Park and Parkway District."

P. A. McCreery: "The adult board did not want the Youth Center involved in a political issue. The picture is much greater than the $10,000 Youth Center budget" ($60,000 greater.)

After some mild bickering about how the Youth Center got shoved (without being consulted) into the district, somebody asked Bill Giles how the Youth Center's drive for funds was going and did he think the kids could raise their own operating expenses for this year. Giles said that with the drive two days old the kids had collected $1,929.35. This is a third of their quota. "People have contributed with a willingness that makes me think we could do it every year. There have been some big contributions; others give one dollar, two dollars, but whatever they give, they seem glad to give it and they give what they can. We got five pennies from a 12 year old girl in Monterey!"
